My name is Steven Immanuel C. Girsang, an undergraduate Data Science student at Telkom University, Bandung. I am passionate about technology and data, especially in how data can be leveraged to develop innovative solutions and address real-world challenges across various sectors such as business, healthcare, and the environment.

I am continuously developing my skills in data analysis, machine learning, and other areas within the field of data science. I have also been involved in student organizations, where I gained valuable experience in leadership, teamwork, and communication.

I am highly motivated to keep learning, enjoy solving complex problems, and aspire to become an expert in data science who contributes to impactful and meaningful projects in the future.
